AEC MINIMUM STANDARDS

The AEC will only conduct elections that accord with generally accepted Australian democratic principles. The following eight minimum standards were developed by the AEC as a result. For the AEC to conduct the election, the Client will need to agree to these minimum standards. If, in the AEC's view, the Client's rules, regulations or constitution do not satisfy the AEC's minimum standards, the AEC may decline to conduct the election.

1. The Ballot will be conducted as a secret ballot.
2. The AEC will only conduct the Ballot in its entirety (from announcement to declaration).
3. Voters will be informed of the event concerned.
4. Each voter will have one vote, subject to the Client's rules, regulations or constitution.
5. Voters will be provided with a reasonable opportunity to vote.
6. There will be provision for the appointment of scrutineers.
7. The names on the roll of voters are only available for viewing by candidates and scrutineers under AEC supervision.
8. The ballot material will be retained by the AEC until the close of the period for challenging the Ballot.

Do you agree to these minimum standards?	YES x☐	NO☐

Part 4 – Additional information
An AEC Officer will contact you to discuss responses to this questionnaire and any further questions that may arise after any rules, regulations or constitution have been considered. Matters which will be covered in this discussion are as follows. The questions below need to be resolved if a Client Organisations Rules are silent.

17.	Specific Election requirements The AEC will need to work through a number of Client requirements with the Client Contact or the Client administrator, which will include: a) eligibility to become a candidate, a voter, or a scrutineer; b) whether and how candidates may withdraw after the period for nominations is closed; c) dealing with multiple nominations (i.e. can one person nominate and/or be elected to more than one office?); d) the order of names (ballot draw) and the style of name (i.e. preferred names) on the ballot paper; e) how to deal with a tied vote at the count; f) what are rules regarding candidate statements in a postal ballot (if any) including word limit, format and photos and whether candidate statements can be changed or altered once submitted and whether they need to be checked approved by the client organisation. g) declaration voting in a postal ballot; and h) where the election is by attendance whether proxy voting is permitted and how will voters indicate a proxy. i)
18.	Election Notice & Nomination Form The AEC will discuss with the Client Contact or Client administrator whether the Client's rules, regulations or constitution require election notices and nomination forms to be distributed to all eligible voters (as well as the method for distribution). If the Client has an election notice and nomination form that do not meet the AEC's minimum standards, the AEC will prepare new versions that satisfy its minimum requirements and the Client's election rules, at an additional fee. As outlined in Question 7, all election notices and nomination forms must meet AEC requirements and all nominations must be received directly by the AEC Returning Officer.
19.	Scrutineers The AEC's Minimum Standard 6 requires provision for the appointment of scrutineers. All candidates can appoint scrutineers but are there any other eligibility requirements in the rules. Appointments need to be made in writing and the AEC can provide a Scrutineer Appointment Form for use in this election.
20.	Counting of the votes and declaration of results The votes are counted as soon as practicable after the close of the election, usually on the same day. The declaration of results will be signed by the AEC Returning Officer and transmitted to the Client as soon as practicable after the completion of the count. Is there a requirement for the results to be kept confidential until they are officially announced?
21.	Retention of ballot material - The ballot material will be retained by the AEC until the expiration of the period of challenge to the results.

NOTE: Any election related matters not covered in the Client's constitution/rules/regulations must be discussed and determined before the election commences. If the Client's processes require consultation, please allow adequate lead time.
