To whom it may concern,

I understand that it has been proposed to name the new seat for the ACT after the historian Charles Bean.

Bean's legacy is obvious and visible, especially to those living in Canberra. Yet it is a legacy anchored in the distant past.

Ngingali Cullen is a more suitable candidate after which the seat should be named. Her work for reconciliation needs more recognition especially as it is a vital and ongoing work. Naming the seat would be a great way to honour the calling and contribution of quiet heroes like Ms Cullen who are otherwise overlooked and neglected.

Regards
