I have just been reading about naming for our new electorate and would like to express my view that of the short listed choices, Cullen is the most appropriate choice. Recognising an indigenous woman with strong connections to the ACT who also played a significant national role would be most appropriate.

I do hope that you will consider a step towards a more gender balanced approach to naming of electorates and move way from a white male model which does not recognise and value many other important Australians.

Thank you for the opportunity to comment
