Dear Sir/ Madam

I have lived most of my life in the Corangamite electorate and have now live in Birregurra for 37 years. Colac is my nearest main town and it seem totally inappropriate that it should cease to be part of the same electorate. We now have an electorate office in Colac as well as Waurin Ponds and it makes sense for Birregurra and Colac to be in the same electorate due to the community of interest between the two towns.

I object to the proposed redistribution and support the proposal being put forward by the Colac Otway Shire which would retain the name Corangamite, a Federation seat, and support the community of interest shared by the present and shire proposed electorate.

It would be very disappointing to live in a new electorate called Cox which has no relevance to where I live.

Yours faithfully
Mrs Jill Falkiner
