Re: NSW Federal Redistribution 2023 – Invitation for Suggestions

Dear AEC,

Thank you for the opportunity to make submissions for the redistribution of electoral divisions in NSW.

My suggestions are informed by my experience as an expert urbanist. I have workshopped with various communities throughout Sydney to explore how their centres and suburbs should be designed and planned. I have found that communities' aspirations for their urban places are far clearer when their electoral boundaries are consistent with their common interests. Designing and planning for our future is far less complicated a task when electorates are drawn around major centres where communities come together (like the existing divisions Sydney and Parramatta for example) and far more challenging when centres are divided (like existing divisions through the centres of Chatswood and Blacktown).

I hope that the AEC finds the reasoning for these suggestions for Sydney divisions to be compelling, and that many of these divisional boundaries are adopted.

Yours sincerely,

Peter Mitchell

Aim

- I aim to show how divisions can be drawn so that communities of interest are united around important urban places rather than divided.
- My suggestions are consistent with AEC's considerations for "communities of interest", "means of communication and travel", "physical features". These considerations can be achieved by choosing electoral boundaries that divide between urban areas as much as possible, and avoid dividing through urban centres.
- I also support the AEC's consideration for maintaining "boundaries of existing federal electoral divisions" where possible, subject to the communities of interest considerations being met first.

Scope

- Region – my suggestions are limited to the Sydney basin. This is where the majority of challenges lie in how to electorally divide metropolitan urban areas. I do not have a position on regional electorates. Boundaries in these areas are more about which whole towns and regions should be combined or separated, and less about how to draw boundaries through regional urban areas.
- Boundaries – my suggestions are focused on the boundaries of divisions. I have no position on the names of divisions, except where geographic names are losing relevance. In every case, "working names" are used merely as a convenience to show the changes in each division.
- Precision – electoral populations are calculated using whole SA1 areas, even though some SA1s span across preferred boundaries. In every case, it is intended that boundaries should be drawn by the AEC along the obvious divider (such as a waterway or major road) rather than divert around the quirks of existing SA1 outlines. Using whole SA1 areas is likely to have minimal impact on electoral population calculations, especially at this Step 2. Suggestions stage of the redistribution.
- Method – the Sydney basin is drawn in two series; northern and southern, with the Parramatta River in between these regions. For reasons best explained in the "Principles" section below, and in consistency with typical AEC practice, divisions are generally drawn from east to west.

Principles

- Major boundaries first – bold dividers between distinctly separate communities of interest are identified first. The AEC should note that there is some variation in what typically constitutes a “major boundary” in different parts of Sydney:
 - In northern Sydney, topographical barriers are most pronounced. The most major boundaries are the waterways that form steep and deep valleys. Urban areas are typically situated along ridgelines, with bushland in the valleys. (This also applies to the southernmost parts of Sydney south of the Georges River).
 - In central Sydney, the most major boundaries are usually freeways, main roads, or industrial railways. However, these bold dividers are not always present, especially where these routes go underground. (Urban railway lines are usually a suboptimal choice for divisional boundaries because train stations are usually important urban centres, and urban centres should be united rather than divided.)
 - In western Sydney, the most major boundaries also include the freeways, main roads, and industrial railways, and add major rivers, creeks, and flood plains.
- Minor boundaries second – these dividers should try to trace the spaces between suburbs rather than split through centres. Existing federal boundaries or LGA boundaries can often suffice when there are fewer significant barriers to choose.

This draft sketch above clearly illustrates how major boundaries define separate communities of interest first, and then how minor boundaries are used to close out each division.

An existing good example of a minor boundary well-drawn is between the centres of Wentworthville and Pendle Hill. While there are lots of other good examples, to achieve better communities of interest throughout Sydney, this approach needs to be the rule rather than the exception.

Existing boundary problems to be fixed

- Significant urban centres have their existing dividers removed:

- | | | |
|---------------|------------------|------------------|
| 1. Allawah | 8. Cremorne | 15. Pendle Hill |
| 2. Ashfield | 9. Dee Why | 16. Potts Point |
| 3. Asquith | 10. Hornsby | 17. Quakers Hill |
| 4. Blacktown | 11. Hurstville | 18. Riverstone |
| 5. Canterbury | 12. Marrickville | 19. Schofields |
| 6. Carlton | 13. Merrylands | 20. Toongabbie. |
| 7. Chatswood | 14. Neutral Bay | |

- Significant geographic boundaries within divisions are avoided:

1. Berowra is redrawn to acknowledge the major boundary of Berowra Creek
2. Cook is redrawn to acknowledge the major boundary of the Georges River
3. Macquarie is redrawn to separate the different Hawkesbury River and Blue Mountains areas.

Suggested solutions

- Banks is suggested to be abolished because it is already divided in half by Salt Pan Creek.
- Abolishing only one electorate meets the requirements of the redistribution with less impact than a method that abolishes multiple divisions and creates multiple new ones. (It is noted that cascading shifts of divisions cannot be avoided.)

- Yellow lines: suggested new divisional boundaries (indicating where SA1s should be split along the suggested boundaries as described in the text).

Working name: Mackellar

Name suggestions: None

Enrolment now: 118,836 (within margin)

Enrolment projected: 125,834 (within margin)

Significant centres:

- Mona Vale
- Dee Why

Significant connections:

- Northern Beaches B-Line and other coastal bus services
- Forest bus services
- No train services

Major boundaries:

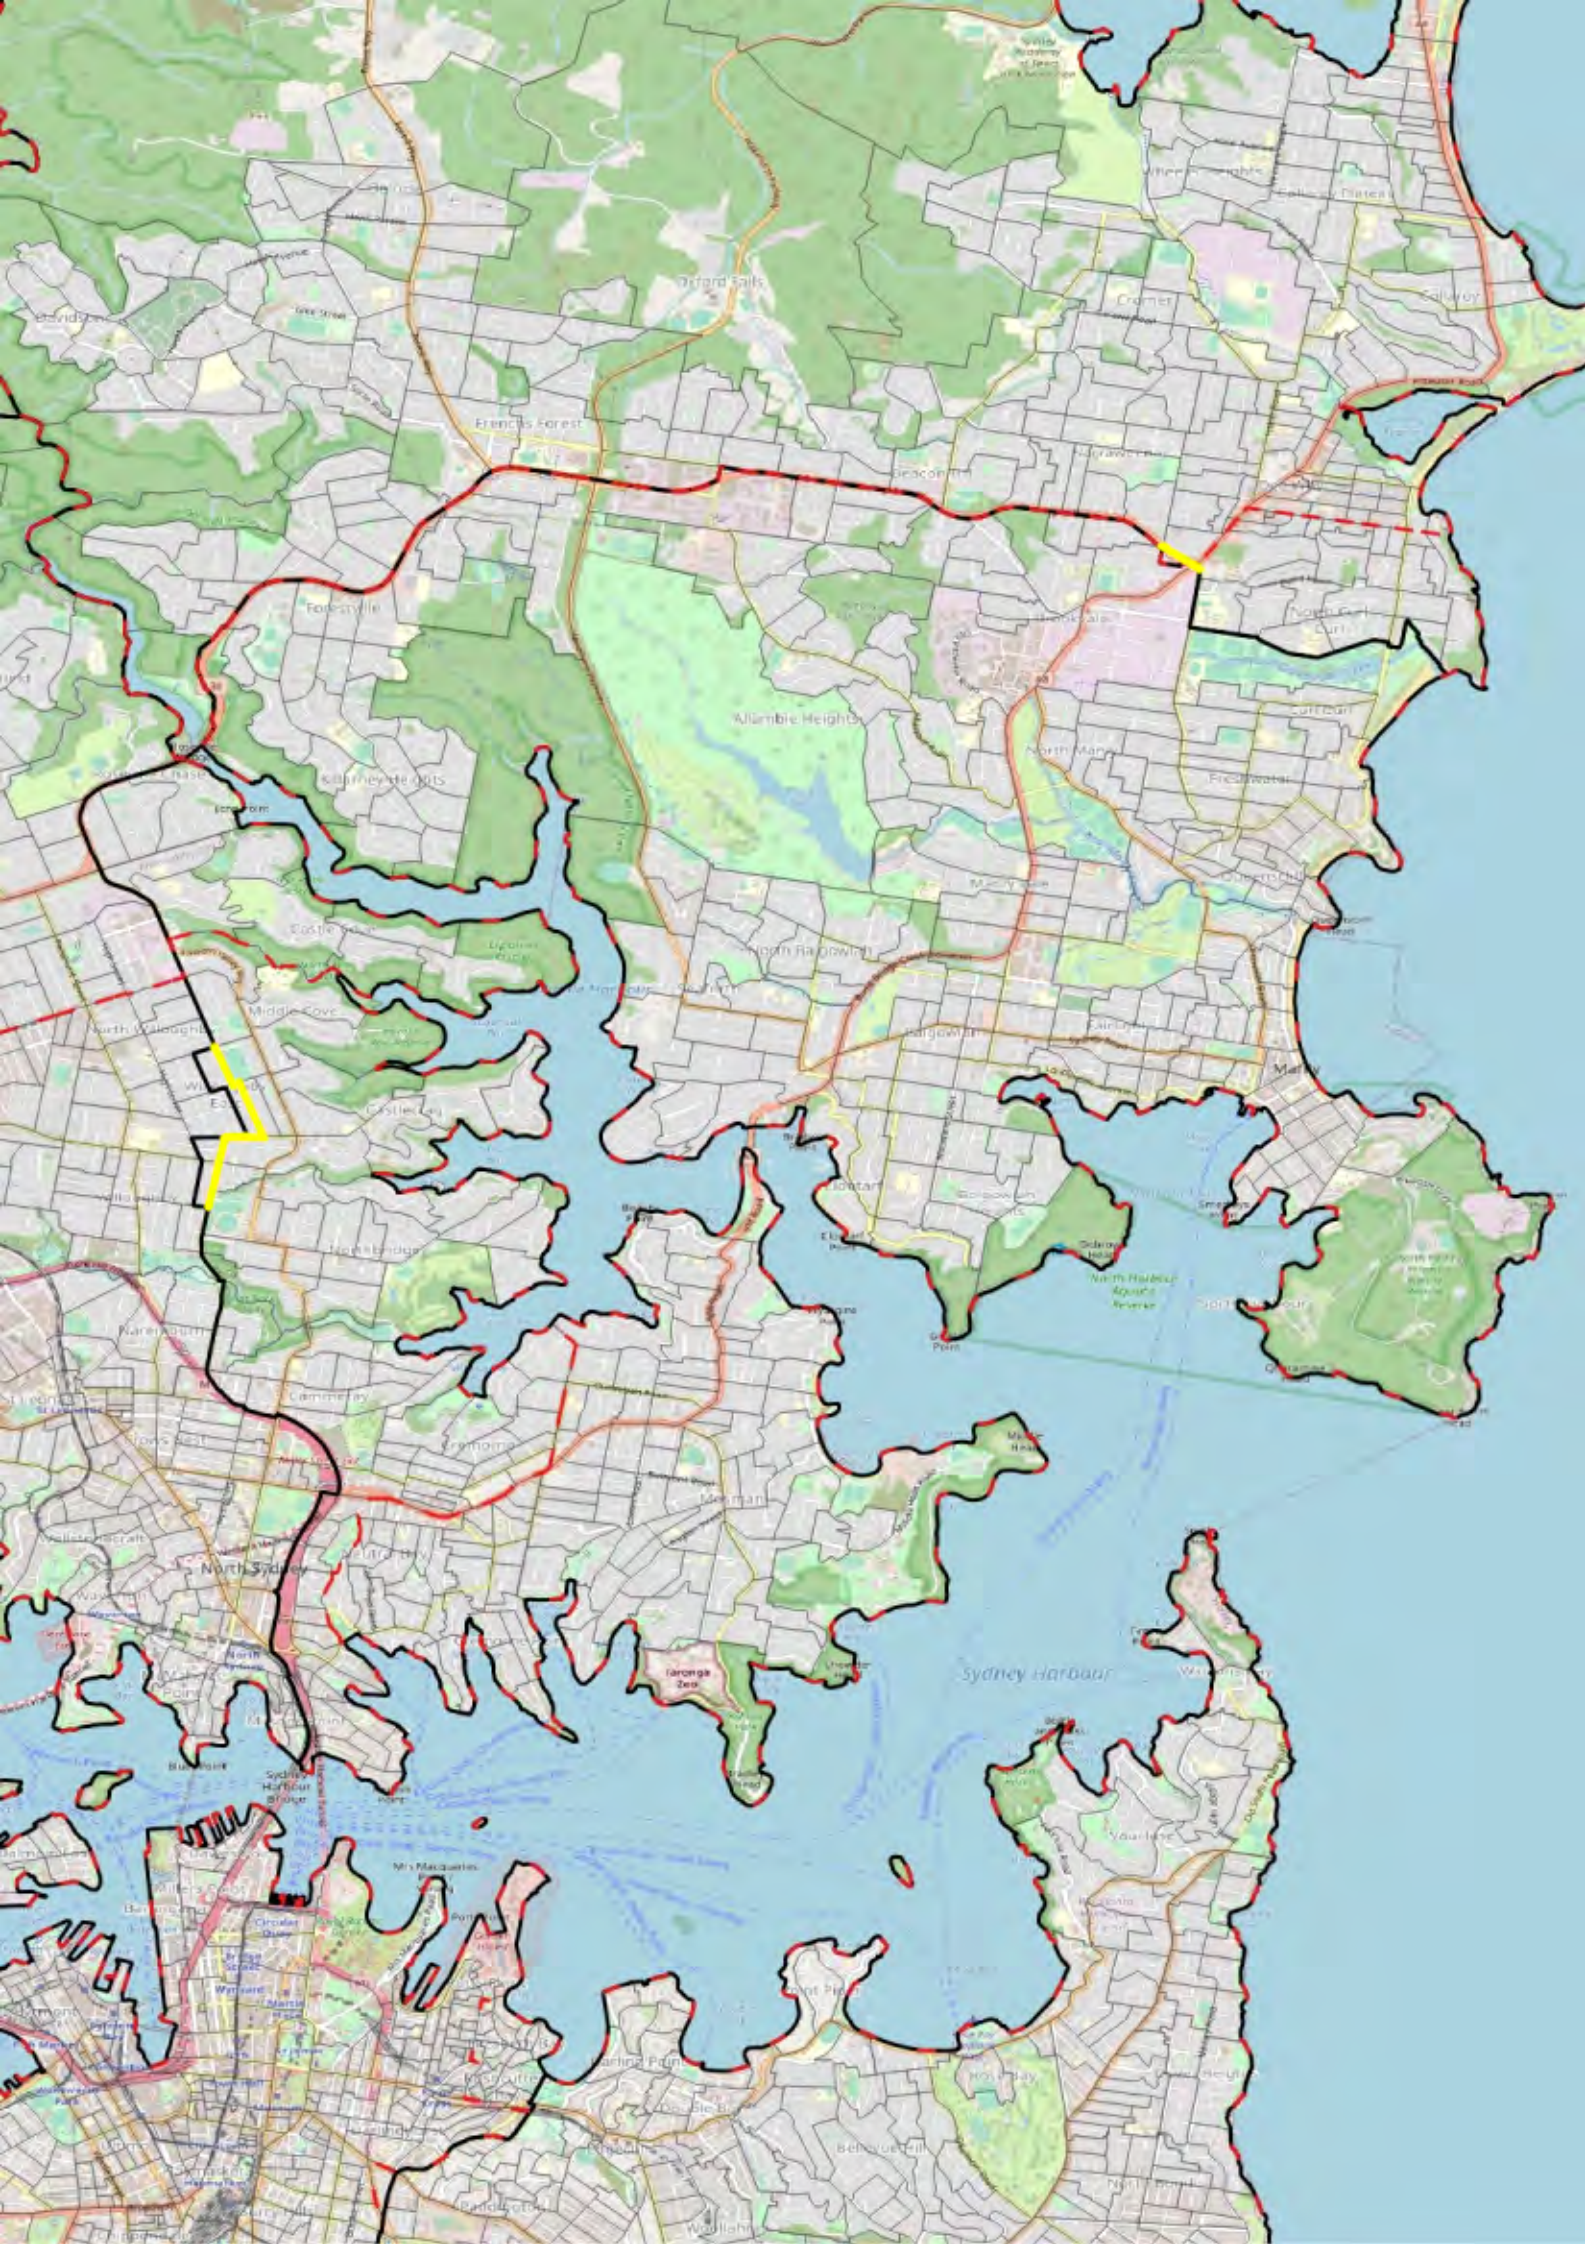

- a. Hawkesbury River (existing boundary)
- b. Cowan Creek (existing boundary)
- c. Middle Harbour (existing boundary)

Minor boundaries:

- a. Warringah Road (existing boundary)
- b. Harbord Road – Curl Curl Lagoon

Justification:

1. Mackellar sits in a 'corner' position due to major topographical boundaries in northern Sydney, and should therefore be the first division to be drawn in this region.
2. Mackellar's existing boundaries make it very clearly defined as the northern part of the Northern Beaches LGA. Only minor redistributive changes are required to increase its size.
3. Curl Curl Lagoon presents as a distinct new boundary. This waterway passes through a 250-400m wide ribbon of parkland separating suburbs to the north and south. This parkland lies adjacent to Harbord Road and the Brookvale industrial area, and as this land use means that it is home to relatively few electors, it also helps to clearly define the new boundary.
4. This new boundary removes the previous divide through the centre of Dee Why, and unites all of Dee Why and North Curl Curl within the same division. This achieves the enrolment requirements.
5. There are strong reasons to retain Mackellar's western boundary without any changes:
 - i. Cowan Creek and Middle Harbour are a major topographical barriers.
 - ii. The Ku-Ring-Gai and Garigal National Parks are major land use barriers.
 - iii. This is also an LGA boundary.
 - iv. The urban links between the Northern Beaches and Upper North Shore districts are relatively weak. Terry Hills and St Ives are peripheral suburbs that face away from one another – Terry Hills' primary common links are with Mona Vale and the Forest areas, while St Ives' primary common links are with Pymble and Gordon. There is a clear 5km gap by road between Terry Hills (at the intersection of Mona Vale Road and Forest Way) and St Ives (at the intersection of Mona Vale Road and Richmond Avenue).

Justification:	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. Warringah must expand to meet the redistribution requirements. As The Spit Bridge is the Northern Beaches' most major connection to the rest of Sydney (it has the only major bus service, for example), this is the best place to electorally connect the Beaches' with the North Shore. Neutral Bay and Cammeray are clear candidates for inclusion due to their many similarities with the Mosman area. The Warringah Freeway forms a major barrier to further expansion to the southwest.2. Arguably the most 'like plus like' method to expand Warringah is to include the eastern edge of Willoughby suburbs of Northbridge, Castlecrag, Middle Cove, Castle Cove, and Roseville Chase. These 'crag and coves' suburbs have marked differences with the majority of the Willoughby areas, and marked similarities with Warringah areas, and for these reasons they are best included in Warringah:<ol style="list-style-type: none">i. The 'crag and coves' lack close and convenient access to the T1 train line, separating these different communities of interest.ii. The 'crag and coves' and share the Northern Beaches and Mosman areas' principal links to the city by bus (for example, the vast majority of bus services on the Eastern Valley Way terminate in the Sydney CBD), sharing this common interest.iii. The 'crag and coves' urban features such as street layout, street connectivity, and tree canopy coverage is particularly similar to the existing Warringah areas of Killarney Heights, Seaforth, and Balgowlah Heights.iv. The 'crag and coves' areas have similar social and economic characteristics to the existing areas of Warringah.3. The new boundary removes the previous divide through the centres of Cremorne and Neutral Bay and doesn't introduce any new divisions through significant urban centres.4. There are strong reasons not to expand Warringah westward into North Sydney CBD:<ol style="list-style-type: none">i. North Sydney CBD is a major city centre, and an urban place of such significance deserves to be most prominent in its own division with consistent common interests.ii. In urban contexts, there is very little similarity between North Sydney CBD and Mosman – Manly. The former is a high density city centre that is broadly relevant for employment and commerce throughout the entire Sydney basin. The latter are medium density strategic centres with local scale relevance. The differences show two distinct and separate communities of interest.

- iii. In connectivity, North Sydney CBD has major rail and metro rail connections enabling easy access throughout the Sydney basin. Mosman and Manly have no rail or metro rail services, and are much more bus (and car) dependent.
- iv. Drawing Warringah's new western boundary along the Warringah Freeway and the Eastern Valley Way is better than the alternative of adding the entire North Sydney LGA to Warringah, as the latter LGA option involves dividing the significant and rapidly growing centres of Crows Nest and St Leonards.

Major boundaries: a. Lane Cove River (existing boundary)

Minor boundaries:

- a. Hunters Hill LGA (existing boundary)
- b. Dalrymple Hay Nature Reserve – Rosedale Road – Eucalyptus Street
- c. Rocky Creek

Justification:

1. North Sydney CBD's status as a major city centre makes it a central focus of this division. Including all of Chatswood in this division is consistent with this city-based common interest.
2. North Sydney can expand to the north to define it clearly as a single division for the Lower North Shore area. This includes Roseville, Lindfield, Killara, and Gordon. Mona Vale Road is a significant barrier between Gordon and Pymble so should therefore form a new boundary. The Rocky Creek catchment to the east can be traced to divide Gordon from St Ives.
3. Hunters Hill LGA to the west is suggested to be retained in this division due to its similar social and economic characteristics. This also maintains the existing boundary unchanged. This inclusion is better than the alternative option of introducing a new boundary along the Lane Cove River at Linley Point, because that would require North Sydney to expand further north and force it to make a more divisive boundary through suburbs and centres in the Turramurra – St Ives area.
4. The existing split through the centre of Chatswood is removed, and no new divisions through significant urban centres are introduced.

- a. Berowra Creek up to Nyripping Creek
- b. Boundary Road – New Line Road
- c. Castle Hill Road – Pennant Hills Road (existing LGA boundary)
- d. M2 Motorway (existing boundary for Bennelong)

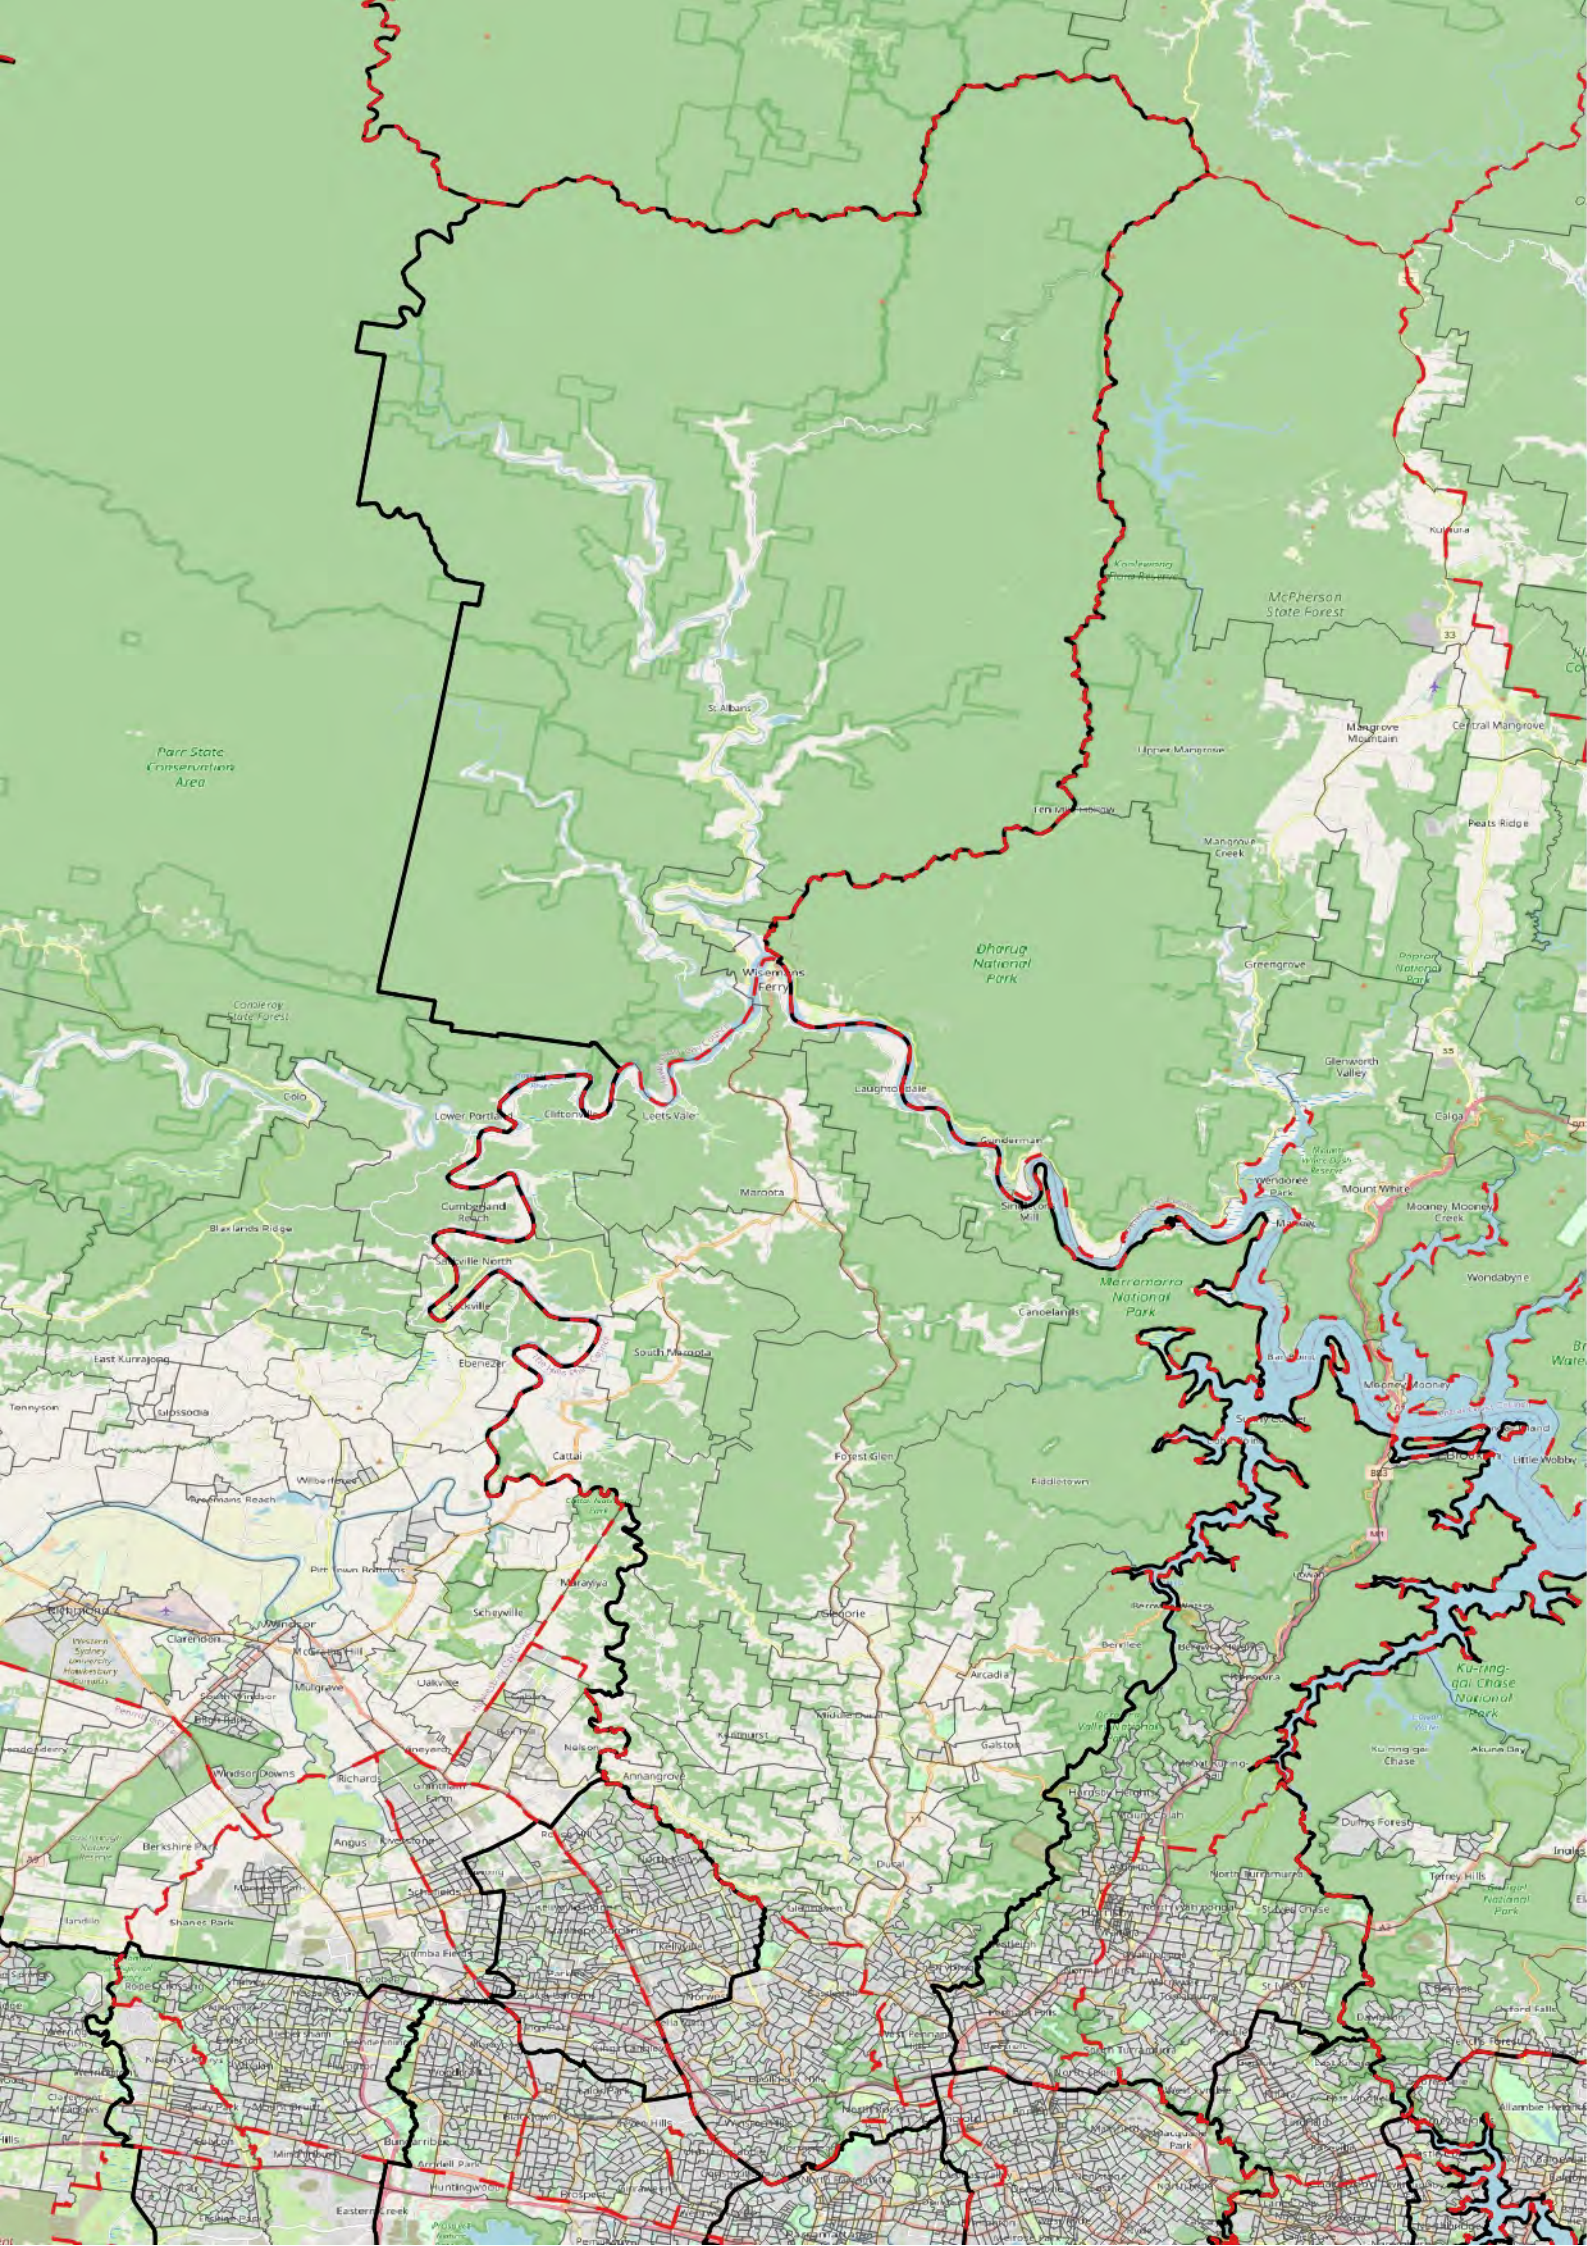

Justification:

1. This is a distinct Upper North Shore ridgeline division, clustered around the T1 and T9 train lines. The changes position Hornsby as its most major centre, with is appropriate given Hornsby's regional significance and its connectivity to the north, southeast, and southwest.
2. Galston Gorge is a massive barrier between different settlements – in urban terms, it is suburban with rail access on the Berowra side and peri-urban without significant transport services on the Galston Side. This confirms that Berowra Creek is a major boundary that should be observed in this redistribution, despite the LGA spanning this gorge.
3. Bradfield extends north into Berowra and Brooklyn, with a clear boundary at the Hawkesbury River. Bradfield also extends south to include Thornleigh, Pennant Hills, Beecroft, and Cheltenham. All these expansions include similar ridgeline communities with rail access.
4. North Epping is also included as it is within the same LGA as the majority of the new division, despite its poor physical connections with these same areas. It does however share a common ridgetop community with access to rail, so its common interests are clear. This inclusion avoids the alternative of a more divisive boundary through the Cherrybrook – West Pennant Hills area.
5. The split through the centres of Hornsby and Asquith is removed, and no new divisions through significant urban centres are introduced.

Justification:	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. This is more clearly defined as an Old Northern Road ridgeline division. Castle Hill is its most major centre, which is appropriate for its existing significance and planned growth as well as its location at the intersection of the metro and the Old Northern Road bus services.2. This division extends south along the ridge to include Castle Hill, Baulkham Hills, Winston Hills, Northmead, and North Rocks. It removes the existing division through the centre of North Rocks.3. This division also extends north to include St Albans and other small communities along the Macdonald River. This is connection through Wisemans Ferry is closer for these communities than their existing connection with Windsor in the division of Macquarie.4. - b. Boundary Road – Schofields Road – Hambledon Road
- c. Quakers Hill Parkway – Quakers Hill HS – Corbin Reserve – Pye Road – Railway Road
- d. Breakfast Creek – Northcott Road – Johnson Avenue – Abbott Road

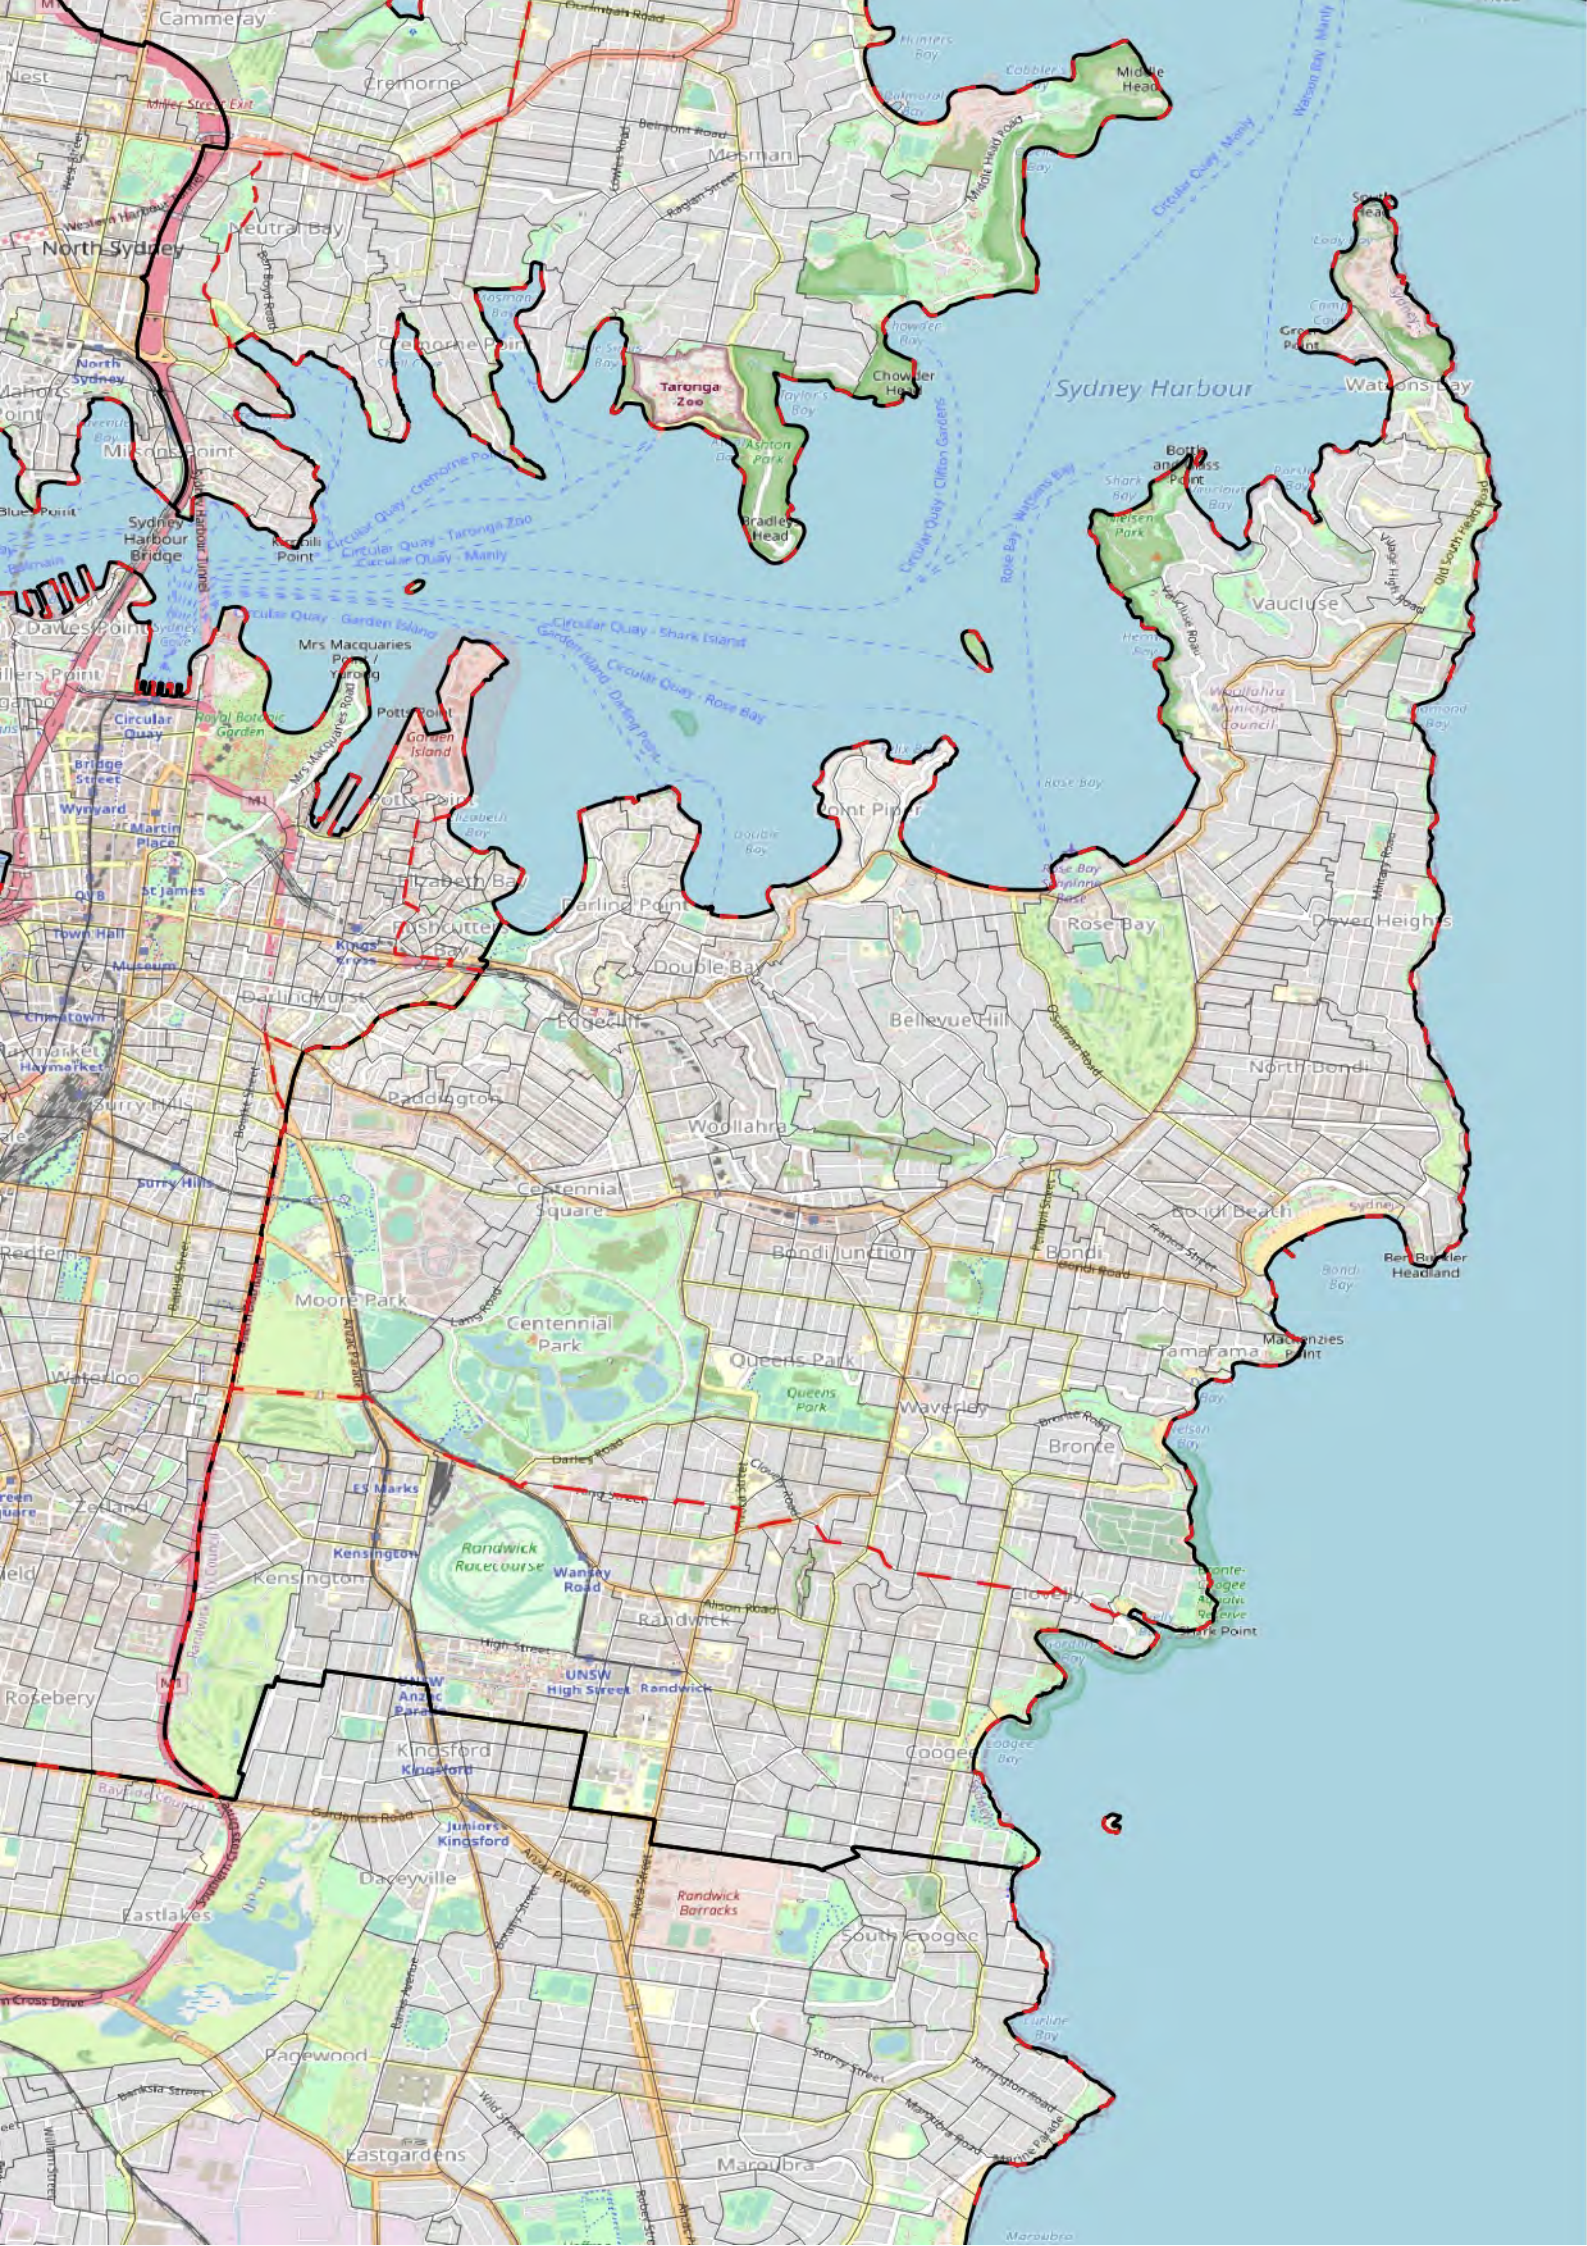

Justification:

1. The Northwest Metro line creates several significant new centres located along the existing electoral division along Old Windsor Road. These new centres and metro stations are now accessed from suburban areas on both sides of the road. Furthermore, both sides have a very similar new suburban contexts, with common social and economic characteristics. This division included similar suburbs such as Kellyville and Beaumont Hills in the east, and Kellyville Ridge and The Ponds in the west. For these reasons, it is now a highly appropriate time for an electoral division to span the traditional boundary of Old Windsor Road.
2. This division is centred upon the metro. Its northern extent ends where the metro does. Its western extent tries to trace the middle-ground between new suburban areas that can orient themselves east towards the new metro (such as The Ponds) and those that orient west towards the T1 / T5 rail line (such as Schofields).
3. These boundaries avoid dividing the centres of Schofields and Quakers Hill, but they unfortunately divides the centre of Marayong.
4. It is noted that the rapid population growth and coarse SA1 boundaries in some areas makes drawing this division difficult but not impossible. There may be other alternative ways to draw this metro-centred division while maintaining the Principles of these suggestions (see section above).

Justification:	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. This significant redrawing of Macquarie refocuses this division on the significant centres of Windsor and Richmond, and includes the rapidly growing centres along the T1 / T5 rail line of Quakers Hill, Schofields, Riverstone, and Vineyard. These changes make it a distinctly river-oriented division. It also retains the adjacent Bells Line and Colo River communities.2. This redrawing omits the Blue Mountains. This area is suggested to be included with Calare as part of the redistribution of regional NSW. (Calare is beyond the scope of this study, as explained in the introduction). The undulating topography and circuitous connections throughout the Blue Mountains LGA area shows these communities have more common interests with the plains to the west rather than the Sydney basin to the east.

Justification:	<ol style="list-style-type: none">1. This 'corner' division should be first drawn in southern Sydney, and should be clearly defined around the Eastern Suburbs areas.2. This division's western boundary to Sydney is clear at the Eastern Distributor, but takes an arbitrary route through Kings Cross and Potts Point. This should be fixed by following the existing LGA boundary, which is a simpler and clearer path along a distinct valley and creek alignment, and neatly divides the suburbs of Darlinghurst and Paddington.3. This division can expand south to include Kensington, Randwick, Coogee, and Clovelly. The proposed boundary includes the suburbs listed and omits Kingsford. This utilises the edges of UNSW, Randwick Boys HS, and Randwick Barracks, while avoiding dividing through any urban centres. (An alternative boundary of High Street and Coogee Bay Road is more linear, but could cut directly through the centres of Randwick and Coogee.)

Justification:

1. This is a second 'corner' division in southern Sydney.
2. Rather than displace parts the southern suburbs of Sydney, there is an opportunity to define this division as a grouping of south-eastern Sydney and Botany Bay-fronting communities. It is noted that this is somewhat of a compromise for this division as it involves spanning the airport, but this compromise in this one instance is preferable to the alternative, which would both involve displacing Sydney (see next division) and setting off a chain of divisional displacements between Sydney and Parramatta.

Minor boundaries:

- a. East side: Boundary Street and Nield Avenue
- b. West side: Johnstons Creek

All other existing boundaries remain unchanged.

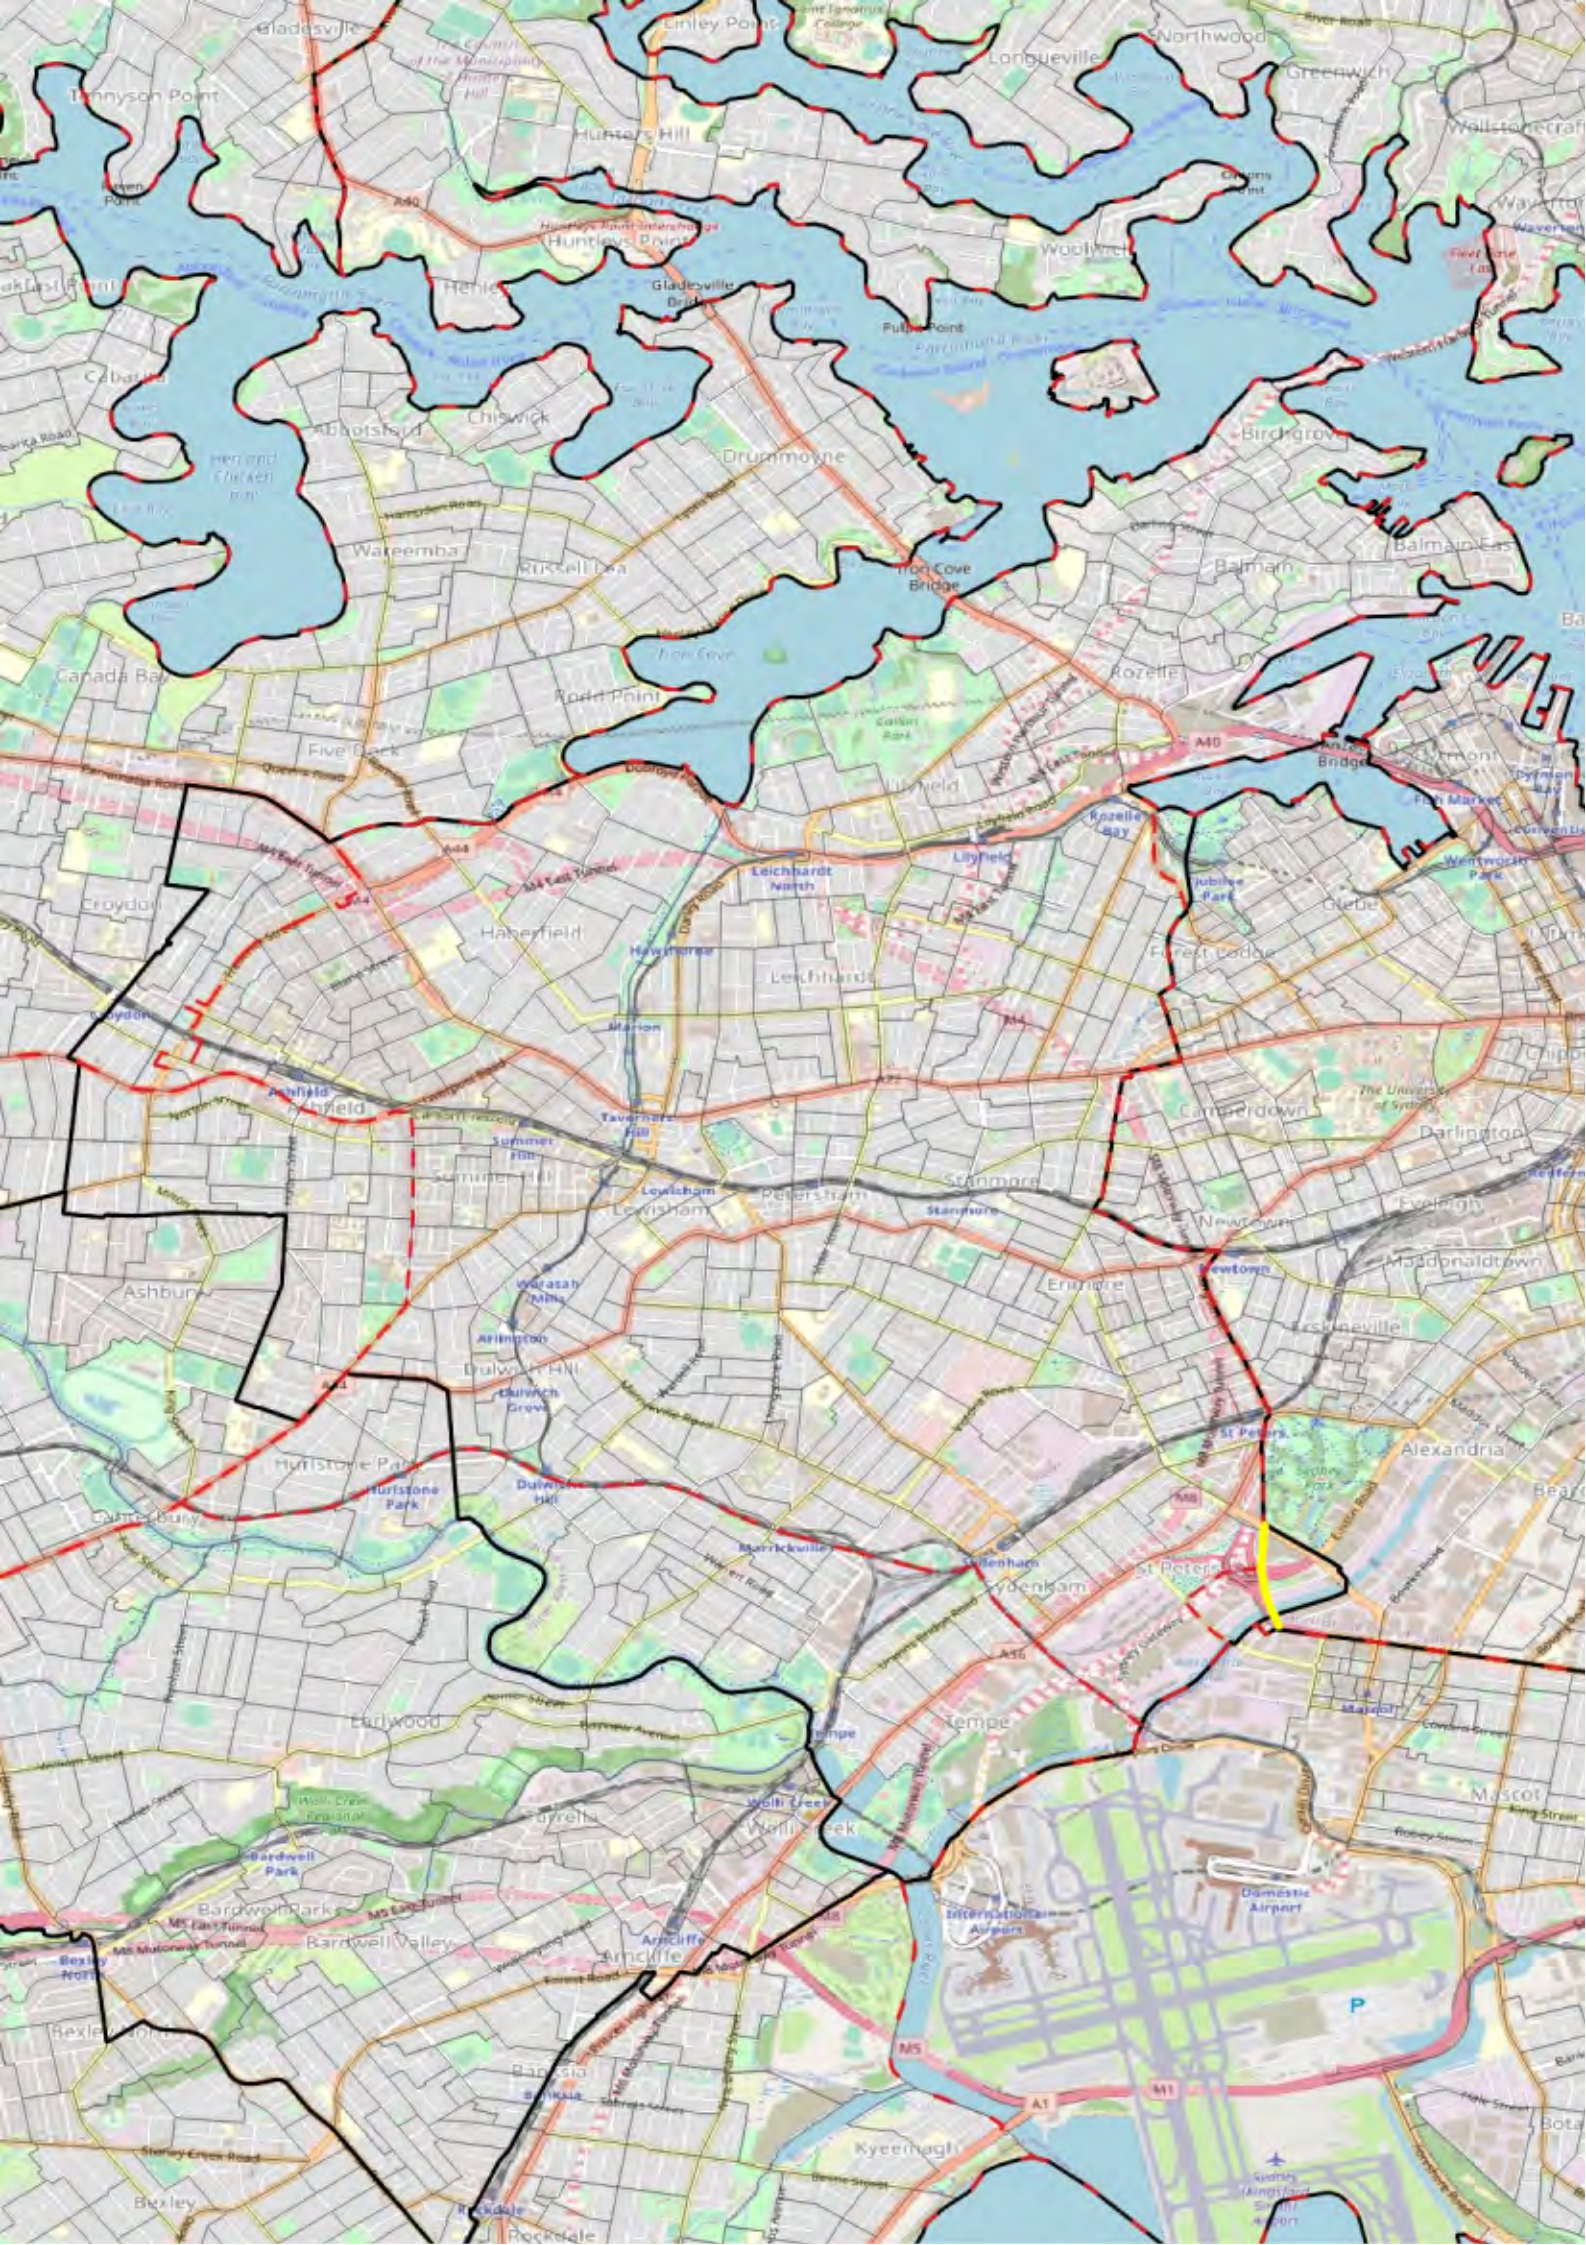

Justification:

1. While Sydney isn't the first seat to be drawn in southern Sydney, it is vital that Sydney's community of interest remains centred on the city's urban core. This is justified by Sydney's position as the capital of NSW, as a globally significant city, and as a major economic centre for the Australasian and Oceanic regions. Sydney's ongoing success as an employment centre and a generator of commerce makes a significant contribution to the NSW and Australian economies. The importance of Sydney city is also growing towards an increasingly knowledge-based future. Sydney can successfully remain centred on its urban core if Wentworth and Kingsford Smith are drawn with respect for Sydney's boundaries. (This also reduces redistribution disruptions in the seats to Sydney's west).
2. Sydney's boundaries can be retained almost unchanged. Two very minor changes are suggested to clarify the existing boundaries by following more significant geographic alignments. A minor expansion east is proposed to include Rushcutters Bay and Elizabeth Bay up to Rushcutters Bay Creek. A minor contraction to the west is proposed to follow Johnstons Creek into Rozelle Bay.

This new boundary suggests that the Loftus, Engadine, Heathcote, Waterfall, and Bundeena suburbs should be moved into Cunningham to the south, as this defines this south coast seat’s northernmost extent at the Hacking River. 3. This alignment avoids the existing boundaries dividing the centres of Ashfield and Marrickville, but does introduce a new boundary through the smaller centre of Croydon.
4. It is noted that this is currently the Prime Minister’s seat, however I give my word that these suggestions that retain this division’s shape and enhance the clarity of its boundaries have no political intent, and are merely a beneficial outcome of keeping the division of Sydney centred on the city’s urban core.

This suggestion expands south into Merrylands, Guildford, Granville, and Auburn to reinforce this city's pivotal position at the intersection of multiple train lines. This alignment avoids dividing the urban centre of Merrylands, and picks up the linear path of the canal pipelines.3. This division also contracts to the west slightly to avoid dividing the urban centres of Toongabbie and Pendle Hill. A major road becomes the new boundary instead.

These are important common features for these new and future communities.2. However, the scale of growth in this area makes drawing a successful division here very challenging. This is compounded by the very coarse SA1 areas that currently give relatively few potential variations. The AEC may be able to adjust this division – particularly around the southern end – to meet the requirements of the redistribution.
