Names

Hi ! My proposal for the redistribution of Tasmania is to change the name for the electoral seat of Franklin. As Australia is moving towards inclusivity and cultural appreciation, it's time we moved away from some of the previous conventions - and names - we had previously. The current name for Franklin after Sir John Franklin has many colonial exploratory connotations, and is a constant reminder of these times to the Australian people. Given the significant redistribution in this seat, it's been changed so vastly that it's time it changed altogether. Two of my name suggestions are: - "Derwent" - The river running through Hobart and next to the electorate, also holding profound significance for the local Indigenous community, where the River Derwent is a 40,000 year old living cultural landscape, used for hunting, gathering, and transportation for the Tasmanian Indigenous peoples. - "Palawa" - The name for the Indigenous custodians of Tasmania. They hold a deep-rooted culture and customs in the region and have for over 40,000 years. Despite colonial disruption, they maintain a strong and thriving culture, including the revival of their language Palawa Kani, and it's finally time they got the national recognition they deserve - they are the utmost deserving to have a seat named for them. Thank you for considering my suggestions, I really hope to see one of these soon on the divisions map ! The Palawa people deserve the name. Rafael
